SUNDOWN ACQUIRES PACIFIC COAST LIGHTING TECHNOLOGIES

RANCHO SANTA MARGARITA, CALIFORNIA-November 1, 2004 - Sundown Lighting & Electrical announced today that they have purchased Pacific Coast Lighting Technologies, Inc. ("PCLT") based in Rancho Santa Margarita, California.

PCLT pioneered the light standard or pole inspection/testing business over four years ago in southern California. PCLT has experienced rapid growth in the demand for these services by property managers, building owners, and governmental agencies including cities, states, and parks. PCLT provides an inexpensive solution to detect the severity of rust or corrosion in poles and a proactive solution to mitigate risk of damage to property or loss of life from fallen poles.

Darin Anderson, CEO of Sundown, stated, "PCLT is an outstanding company that provides a valuable professional service to many of our same customers. We are very excited to have the skills and knowledge of the PCLT team members join Sundown. Sundown has been working with PCLT for many years now and they consistently deliver a highly valued service for property managers and building owners."

Joe Thrailkill, Sundown Founder and COO went on to say "There is no other company that has been able to compete with this service and deliver it as well as PCLT. Many of PCLT customers have been able to get property liability insurance reductions as a result of this regular testing service. It is a very valuable tool. I know it will be well received by our customers. They look for us to make their jobs easier. This is just one additional tool to provide them."
